C820 Good news so amazing from an angel so bright. "Fear not" you have found favor in the sight of the One. You have been chosen to carry God's Son. Her fears slipped away under the cover of grace, And soon the joy of the Holy One shone on her face. She magnified the Lord; Her heart skipped a beat; She was overwhelmed by a message so sweet. A census took her and Joseph to a Bethlehem stable. They started their family, though neither felt able. She brought forth The Child in the darkness of night And with Him came the promise of life-giving light.

We are but lumps of clay—forever unfinished, malleable objects of our Creator being molded into the image of Christ. We relinquish control to our holy potter who lovingly molds us with the tacit understanding that there will be no kiln to solidify us. As a result our figurative “clay” will be smudged, dented, and perhaps damaged beyond recognition. However, we must remember that He will always be there to restore on us.

WC-068 / $14.00

Working only with Q-Tips instead of paintbrushes Sharon Cope's exaggerated forms epitomize the awkwardness and simultaneous beauty of youth. These figures in all of their lanky prepubescent glory remind us of those memorable days of childhood glory.

Whether it is the infectious get-up-and-dance quality of swing, the undulating groove of bebop, the syncopated frenzy of ragtime, or the debonair ease of cool jazz—jazz is a music that has been captivating the masses for the better part of the twentieth century and the young millennium. In the 2009 'All That Jazz' calendar the famous Nigerian artist simply known as 'Okaybabs' expertly captures the spirit of the music.
